God or Money

And nowadays? When shares of major corporations fall a few percent, the news makes headlines. Experts endlessly discuss what it might mean. But when a homeless person is found frozen in the streets behind empty hotels, or a whole population goes hungry, few notice; and if it makes the news at all, we just shake our heads sadly and carry on, believing there is no solution.

This is what Jesus meant when he said you cannot serve both God and money. In our lives, just as in our societies, if you put money at the center, you enter the pattern of sacrifice: whatever the human cost or the damage to the environment, the tower must go higher and higher. But when you put people's dignity at the center, you create a new logic of mercy and of care. Then what is truly of value is restored to its rightful place.

Either a society is geared to a culture of sacrifice-the triumph of the fittest and the throwaway culture-or to mercy and care. People or bricks: it is time to choose.
